

Center for Narrative, Meaning, and Media

Unlock the transformative power of narrative in a changing world

Students learn the power of narratives to help understand themselves, where they come from, and where they're going. As graduates, students are equipped with the skills and strategies to make sense of the world through a knowledge of societies' pasts, religious worldviews, and creative and thoughtful communication.

Our students are ...

- Keenly interested in using words, images, and sound to help people understand the world around us
- Fascinated with learning about the past to make sense of the present and inform the future
- Concerned with justice, ethics, and religious practices and beliefs
- Curious readers, deep thinkers, and thoughtful, creative communicators

What you can study:

- Creative Writing
- Digital Media and Journalism
- History
- Religious Studies
- Stand-alone minors including History of the Christian Science Movement and Literary Studies.

What you'll do: Explore the transformative, cross-cultural power of narrative storytelling in human experience by exploring history, religious studies, journalism, digital media, and creative writing.

Where you'll learn:

- Principia's state-of-the-art TV and radio/podcasting studios
- Editorial offices of the Mistake House literary magazine, and the student-produced Principia Pilot campus newspaper and website
- Through high-profile, high-impact internships such as at The Christian Science Monitor and The Mother Church (headquarters of the Christian Science church) in Boston, Massachusetts; public relations firms; and the Wordsworth Trust in Grasmere, England

How you'll contribute: Our graduates work across a variety of industries, professions, and disciplines. You'll build a strong foundation to pursue careers like:

2 Center for Narrative, Meaning, and Media

- Journalism and media
- Writing, editing, and publishing
- Law
- Religious chaplaincy
- Public relations
- Marketing and communications
- Work with a variety of religious institutions
- Graduate studies in theology and history
- Education and non-profit administration
- Museums, archives, libraries, historical societies

Find out more about our learning community, coursework, and faculty.